Detention without charge/Fear of Torture
or ill-treatment

13 June 2002

CAMEROON

Ousman Haman (m)
Ahmadou Hassan (m)
Adamu Isa (m)
Yunusa Mbaghoji (m)

Amnesty International is concerned for the safety of Ousman Haman, Ahmadou Hassan, Adamu Isa and Yunusa Mbaghoji who are members of the Mbororo ethnic group in the North-West Province of Cameroon. They are detained without charge and are at risk of torture or ill-treatment.

Ousman Haman was arrested in Bamenda, in the North-west Province on 29 April, but released on bail by the Bamenda High court on 17 May. According to his lawyer, he was tortured by the gendarmes following his arrest. He was reportedly beaten on the soles of his feet 150 times using a cane and flogged while being ordered to jump on sand by the gendarmes. He was also reportedly beaten by his inmates in Bamenda Terre brigade. He was taken to hospital, then released on bail but re-arrested a few days later.

Ahmadou Hassan, Adamu Isa and Yunusa Mbaghoji were arrested by the Gendarmerie on 15 May in Douala, Littoral Region. They were transferred to Bamenda and detained without charge for more than a week. Together with Ousman Haman, the men were transferred to the Bafoussam Central Prison, in the West Province, on 23 May. They are currently being held without charge, in violation of Cameroon law under which detainees should be referred to a judicial authority to be either charged or released within 72 hours of arrest.

Detainees in Cameroon are routinely tortured or ill-treated. The conditions of detention in police stations, gendarmerie headquarters and prisons are inhumane. Severe overcrowding, poor hygiene and ventilation, inadequate food and medical care results in a high mortality rate amongst detainees.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Mbororo ethnic group is particularly numerous in the North-West Province of Cameroon. Their main source of income is raising cattle. In 1986 a prominent businessman and a member of the Central Committee of the ruling party, Cameroon People's Democratic Movement (CPDM), established two cattle ranches in the Boyo and Menchum divisions of the North-West province. He allegedly forced both Mbororo shepherds and farming communities from their lands without compensation, which made him the largest single private landowner in the province.

The land owner, who is said to have close links with the authorities and the Gendarmerie has been involved in land disputes with Mbororo shepherds. In 1992, the Mbororo Social and Cultural Development Association (MBOSCUDA) was established to protect Mbororo rights and promote their development. In 1993, three members of the organisation were arrested and unlawfully detained. Four members of MBOSCUDA were arrested in 1996 and held without charge for several days.
